Position Description:

ENVIRONMENTAL CONFLICT RESOLUTION INTERNSHIP AVAILABLE (Summer)

Description:
The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency’s Conflict Prevention and Resolution Center (CPRC) seeks a student intern interested in environmental conflict resolution. CPRC houses EPA’s experts in environmental collaboration and conflict resolution and provides a range of services to EPA managers and staff, including access to professional mediators and facilitators, case intake and consultation, process design, conflict coaching, and training.

Applicants are asked to develop a project proposal (1 page) on a topic of mutual interest to work on during their internship with CPRC. Final products may include a presentation to CPRC leadership, an article for journal submission, a training module, or other appropriate project. New ideas and continuations of existing work are equally welcome. The intern will work under the direction of CPRC staff, who will provide project feedback, involve the intern in appropriate meetings, and introduce the intern to relevant contacts and resources within EPA.
