Combined Foreign Languages Major

- Eight courses in foreign languages, chosen in consultation with the major faculty advisor, and taken from the list of courses that would count toward a single-language major (FREN120 and above; SPAN131 and above). One of the eight must be the Advanced Topics course (capstone course, numbered 296).
- One course in Comparative Literature, normally the core course (CMLT130) required of all majors.
- Four related courses, as determined in consultation with the student’s major advisor.
- At least two units of study abroad in a culture in which one of the target languages is spoken. Ordinarily, courses taken abroad may be counted toward the required courses in that language area.
